

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

As we all turn the page to a new year, Nest is focused on two specific goals...how to stay true to our Nest roots and evolve with an ever changing landscape that is the furniture business. A tall order for sure.

We are still factory direct, and still have an awesome story of special hand painted finishes, hand forged iron, as well as an eco story with products made from reclaimed wood doors. We are thrilled to hear consistently from our customers that they find extraordinary value in our products, which ties directly to our niche: offering higher end products for a mainstream price.

Another extremely important part of our story is the versatility of our products, making eclectic easy. The same item works beautifully into an array of styles from Urban Farmhouse, Classic Transitional, and Modern Lodge...even encompassing Fresh Coastal, Mid century Modern, Rustic Mountain, and finally California Naturals. One piece from Nest can help your customer take their room into a whole new style direction without needing to replace the entire room.

It remains top of mind for us to make it easy for you. We start by offering free Point of Purchase(POP) to communicate directly to your end consumer about options without the need to run and find a catalogue. Electronically, we have AMP to give you constant access to inventory availability, and even this catalogue is available as a flip book for those who have moved away from printed catalogues. We are now fully stocked at the Riverside warehouse for wood and fabric sample requests, and our photo studio offers any photography in this catalogue in high res for ads.

We are spreading our wings in some new ways as well...

As working from home grows for small and large American companies, we have expanded dramatically our desk options that can tuck beautifully into the corner of a living or dining room in both function and style. Home has become a place we now require creature comforts, and we have answered that demand with accent chairs and ottomans that signal this is a place to truly relax...your oasis from the craziness of the outside world.

Our drop ship program is unique in that it is geared towards and THRU our retail partners. No IT degree needed, we have taken all the hassle out with 1 all in price on over 300 skus to ship directly to your customer. We believe this is the future of the industry, and we are excited to do it in a way that enhances our retail partnerships.

Thank you, with utmost sincerity. We appreciate your partnership as we have worked our way thru the business and logistical challenges of the last year.

We are looking forward with excitement, 2021 is already a great year!

With our warmest greetings,

Joni Olson

OUR DOOR STORY

Doors with history generate one-of-a-kind products.
Created and aged in nature, refined by very human hands.

Our factory rests in a rural farming community 4 hours outside of Beijing, China. All the locals know that we buy as many old doors as they can bring to us, so all day, every day, there is a steady stream of people coming into the factory to drop off old doors. Some have only 2 sets on the back of a wagon pulled by a bicycle. Others arrive on the back of a small, old, flatbed truck with 10-12 sets of doors.

There is a designated row (the length of a football field) just inside the main gate to the factory for the doors. It begins each week empty, and is usually full by Friday. At the end of the day the workers move the door stacks to one of the many storage facilities on site at the 1 million square foot plant.

Some are very plain and without adornment; these are from a more modest house or area. Others are embellished with heavy iron hardware, a sure sign of wealth or origins at a much larger more impressive front gate structure. They can be any color of the rainbow: red, black, natural, yellow, but they have all mellowed with age as they have stood the test of time and elements. They can often be traced back hundreds of years.

All are one of a kind, which is what makes Nest products so special and unique; textures and depth that only come with age. Created and aged in nature, refined by very human hands.

WOOD CHARACTERISTICS, DEFECTS & CARE

Nest suppliers use a mixture of old and new wood, which varies by country of origin.

Our factories in China use Elm, Pine, and Oak. Our factories in India use Sheesham, Acacia, and Mango. The majority of our products are made from elm and pine, made out of old doors and other building parts.

Like other antiques, each piece is unique - which is what makes them so special.

Below is a list of characteristics that you can/ should expect to find in products made out of old doors and reclaimed wood, along with some pictures of what IS a defect.

NORMAL CHARACTERISTICS

Small cracks along grain lines

Small cracks along grain lines

Small holes in wood

Small areas of natural surface variations

Irregular patterns

Blocking or stamps to replace holes left by hardware

^{}Slight variations in overall color are also a natural characteristic as each piece accepts stain differently.

Knots in grain

Small cracks due to seasonal temperature and humidity variations

Grain pattern variation

DEFECTS

Any crack that effects the function is a defect. Ex: A cracked dining table leg, or dining chair seat. Any seasonal crack you can fit a quarter into.

CARE

Nest items should be treated like any other wood - using coasters or placemats to protect it. Nest items either have a wax finish, or light coating of lacquer to protect the surface against spills or stains. If you spill a soda, or glass of red wine, as long as you wipe it up right away, it will not effect the wood.

Daily cleaning can consist of wiping it down with a damp cloth regularly, and 2 times per year, a mild cleaner/wood conditioner (like Murphy's oil soap) can be used to moisturize. Do not spray directly on the wood, always spray on a cloth first. A heavier lacquer or polyurethane can be applied to the surface but will affect the natural look and negate the warranty.
